

July 2021

UM students lead a prescribed wildfire burn at the University's Bandy Ranch.

The University offers a coding boot camp to learners statewide.

UM students helped create the Rural Outreach And Music \(ROAM\) program, which connects rural Montana schools with the power of music.

UM research finds that Rocky Mountain forests are burning more now than in any point in the past 2,000 years.

University research reveals why people gravitate toward certain campsites.

Third-year law student Brooke Reynolds is learning firsthand just how contentious water rights can be in Montana, serving this summer as an intern on the Montana Water Court.

The University's happiness course offered a bright spot during a long pandemic.

UM adds two undergraduates to its long list of Udall Scholars.

Five UM students earned Gilman Scholarships for educational adventures abroad.

The law school's graduate employment rates climbs to 94% despite the pandemic.

UM's two largest universities share a \$1.9 million grant to serve children, adolescents and youth with mental and behavioral health needs.

The University's John Ruffatto Business Startup Challenge will be a live, in-person event again this fall.

Judge Benjamin Hursh is helping UM law students gain valuable experience.

The University named its Presidential Leadership Scholarship winners, as well as its Provost Honors Scholars and Dean's Leadership Scholars.

Research reveals ancient people had much more diverse gut microorganisms.

UM ranked No. 7 nationally for assisting students with autism.

UM's spectrUM Discovery Area and SciNation, its advisory group on the Flathead Reservation, earned a 2021 Impact Innovation Award.

UM's Cara Nelson is leading a United Nations effort to define principles to reverse degradation of global ecosystems.